Welcome to 2012! This year is going to be an exciting one especially with the National Photographic Portrait Prize exhibition coming up in March... Why is this exciting? Because I'm a finalist! The judges selected 46 images out of 1500 entries to exhibit at the National Portrait Gallery in Canberra. This is where they will select the sole winner of the $25,000 prize.

Amongst other various photographic awards, I have also just been named the runner up 2011 South Australian Professional Illustrative & Fine Art photographer of the year, as well as appearing in the latest Capture Magazine Annual.

In other news, I would like to introduce a brand new business - Fluff and Stuff. This business focuses on Pet Photography while Benjamin Liew Photography will still focus on corporate and commercial photography, so it's business as usual.

I hope you are healthy and happy and I wish you the best for 2012!

Warmest regards,

-Benjamin Liew
